

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A method to transfer information among or between parties for a commodity contract includes: A) providing at least one application service provider (ASP) control site, and at least one adapter at a remote site; B) inputting data about a transaction involving at least one party to the transaction to the ASP control site; C) if necessary, electronically communicating from the ASP control site and through the adapter to the at least one party; C) if necessary, receiving instructions or data at the ASP control site through the adapter from the at least one party; and E) processing the data and/or instructions at the ASP control site. The method can be practiced through a global computer communications network, and is well adapted for agricultural commodity transactions and those conducted through an exchange.

0985128-05401
T04250 "B2F5860"